Shared Apprenticeship Scheme
With a CITB Shared Apprentice, help is always at hand
The Shared Apprenticeship Scheme gives you the support you need, when you need it

The Shared Apprenticeship Scheme is an innovative collaboration between CITB and regional partners. It has been established in response to industry demand, as a way of providing construction contractors with an opportunity to meet local training obligations, and to maximise additional training opportunities for apprentices.

• Do you have a training opportunity in a location that you don’t traditionally work in?

• Have you identified a training opportunity within your company for an apprentice, but can’t commit to the long-term employment of that apprentice?

• Are you committed to giving apprentices an opportunity to learn and progress?

Then the Shared Apprenticeship Scheme could be for you.

Partnering with the local community:

The Shared Apprenticeship Scheme, CoTrain, has been established in partnership with SECBE, with support from Surrey County Council, Hampshire County Council, Miller Construction, Osborne and iESE.

Chris Harrison, Programme Director, Miller Construction

“Providing training and employment opportunities for our local communities is of vital importance to us as a Main Contractor but also to our clients, public and private sector alike. CoTrain is a great solution, giving the flexibility we need right through our supply chain.”

Guy Dawes, Framework Manager, Osborne

“Osborne is delighted to have CoTrain as a Partner helping realise apprenticeships across all our sites.”
Benefits of the Shared Apprenticeship Scheme

- The Shared Apprenticeship Scheme gives you the opportunity to take on an apprentice, even if you can’t commit to the full two or three year duration.
- Because the apprentice is employed by the Shared Apprenticeship Scheme, the employment responsibilities will be taken care of and you will only be re-charged for the time the apprentice is with you.
- The flexible nature of this scheme can provide your business with the chance to secure new contracts and at the same time provide an opportunity for an apprentice.
- Your business will benefit from an injection of energy from talented young people when your workload peaks.
- All Shared Apprentices get the best training the industry can offer – with CITB.
- We will provide trainees with a strong desire to succeed, and who will have already successfully passed our selection procedures.
- Our focused selection process gives you the opportunity to select the correct person for your company.
- Your business will benefit from the significant saving of the costs normally associated with recruitment.
- Your apprentice will be fully supported by CITB representatives, who are committed to helping them complete their qualifications and become successful tradespeople.
- At the end of the scheme you have the option to take over the apprentice’s employment – adding a fully-trained member to your workforce.

“A CITB Shared Apprentice allows construction contractors to meet any local training obligations required as part of contract procurement requirements.” – Ofsted
